

Abraham Caponi

LAZLO AGENCY PERSONNEL FILE

Age: 46 Height: 5'10" Build: medium Eyes: brown Hair: black but greying; kept short.

Occupation: Private Detective in Seattle, Washington.

Family History of the Paranormal: Some, but nothing much. "Yeah, so supposedly my great Aunt Tilda was a psychic and could sense when bad things were gonna happen. But she was a cynical old bird according to my ma, so it might have just been her being pessimistic. Other than that, I got nothin."

Personal info of note: Grew up in New Jersey, a "really bad part of it". Graduated High School and immediately joined the Army "to get outta Jersey". After four years in the Army he enrolled in the Philadelphia Police Academy.

Career notes: Was said to be an outstanding Police Officer and was promoted to a Homicide Detective quickly. However, shortly afterwards he was discharged for "medical reasons". Moved to the west coast in the hopes of getting a job in law enforcement again. After no such luck, he acquired his license to become a private investigator. Has been an investigator for more than twenty years.

Per Abraham: "Yeah, I was young, idealistic and full of Italian stubbornness; I get it from Ma. So my report detailed that the suspect in this this particular case was likely a Brawling Joe who beat the victim to a bloody pulp. The fists marks and bruises all made sense to that; this poor schmooze took a beating like no other. The brass got mad at me and told to change my tune. But I didn't; I stuck to my guns and got fired over it. 'Couldn't handle the stress of the job' was their reason. Friggin mooks. I kept waiting to see them deal with the stress when that Brawling Joe came for them. But that didn't happen, and you know why? Cause a few paranormal investigators and I hunted it down and ended it."

Reason for Paranormal Investigating: Witness to the Supernatural. "Yeah, so I saw the Jersey Devil when I was a kid. Or at least I think I did, it could a been a demon, or a friggin' monster, or something that looked big, ugly and evil I suppose, but I saw somethin'. Been into the paranormal ever since."

Aptitudes: Firm believer in the Paranormal & Supernatural, extremely patient, excellent researcher, good detective and daring to a fault: Willing to investigate bad neighborhoods and places others won't. Also claims to be a really good shot with his sidearm.

Side Observation: Mr. Caponi suffers from triskaidekaphobia; anything related to the number 13.

-Compiled by Dr. Edmond Smythe, Parapsychologist